School district reconsiders sale of Southport land

By David Weller

The Washington School Board authorized the district to seek bids the sale of the Arlington Oaks property last night. The district has not used the 10 acres of land near Jefferson Boulevard in the Arlington Oaks subdivision in Southport for about twenty years. The lowest bid the district will consider taking for the land is $1,350,000. Bids will be taken until March 28.

Two years ago, an advisory committee recommended against selling the property at that time because land values were so low.

Other issues the district has been working on include:

■ Developing technology labs at the schools. Last spring the district decided to spend $250,000 on developing the technology capabilities in the district. In addition the district has received a $40,000 donation from the Cameron Foundation, and $5,000 from the West Sacramento Foundation for the same purpose.

With the money, the district has been able to put a computer lab at Westmore Oakes, and place some computers for student use at each of the other schools. In the interest of security all computers have been put in areas protected by burglar alarms.

In addition a new lab will be placed in the high school in the spring and in the middle school in April. Through the district's new investments in technology, students are expected to have access to databases throughout the world through internet connections, as well as advanced courses offered through satellite hookups.

When it becomes possible, the district plans to require students to pass a computer literacy requirement before graduating.

■ The district is also working on a new "Applied Physics" course at the high school. Which will be directed toward students planning to go into technical fields as well as students planning to go to college. There will be less emphasis on knowledge of advanced mathematics than in traditional physics courses.

■ With a new attendance policy in place, district administrators are boasting a 54 per cent decline in unexcused absences, which means there are 55 more students in class in the district every day, according to Superintendant David Miller.

"With attendance up, the grades are up.The grade point average rose from 2.15 to 2.30 the first semester at the high school," said Miller.

Warming up

Golden State Middle School band members let loose with a little Vivaldi at rehearsal Tuesday morning, under the direction of instructor Stan Thomas-Rose. The band will join school choir members in a wide-ranging concert Thursday at 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria. Admission is free.

Woman raped

By Steve Marschke

Police are searching for one of two suspects in the kidnaping and rape of a local woman Monday morning.

"A female was walking on the 1900 block of Merkley Ave. between 5 and 6:30 a.m. when she came upon a male," said Officer Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department. "The male forced her into a hotel room at the Golden Motel on West Capitol Ave. Between the time she was taken from Merkley to the motel room, she was stabbed in the back with an unknown weapon. When she got to the motel, she was assaulted by a different male."

Police arrested Clifford Charles Olsen, 26 (a resident of the motel) for rape.

They are searching for the kidnap suspect, 28-year old Eric Love. Love is African-American, 5' 5" tall, and weighs about 155 pounds.

City expansion plan returns

Merwin & Associates, which represents owners of 2,700 acres north of West Sacramento's city boundaries, has offered to fund the completion of a Yolo County "Sphere of Influence" study to help determine the city's ultimate boundaries.

The study will be needed before any expansion of West Sacramento through new, adjacent developments can be allowed.

The West Sacramento City Council will vote tonight (Feb. 15) on whether to authorize Yolo County's Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) to proceed with the study.

Although plans for developing areas adjacent to West Sacramento have not been pursued in the last few years, Merwin & Associates did propose a mixed-residential development to the north of the city several years ago.

Man arrested in molestation of local girls

A former West Sacramento man was arrested Wednesday after a series of child molestation from mid-December 1994 to last New Year's Day.

The incidents took place on the 400 block of Westacre Rd.

"There were three different cases," said Officer Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department.

According to police records, 37-year old Kevin Ellis, who formerly lived at the Westacre location, provided liquor to two juveniles and had sexual relations with one, a 14-year old girl. The suspect also allegedly assaulted a 12-year old girl sleeping at his home at a different time, and tried to remove clothing from an 11-year old girl in a separate incident.

"When we started investigating, he fled to Washington state," said Bowler. "We got information that he would be at a restaurant at Broadway and 13th in Sacramento at 6 p.m. on Wednesday. We went there at 6, and there he sat."

Ellis has been charged with two counts of child molestation and one count of annoying a minor.

New West Sac Ministry group has high hopes

By David Weller

Religious leaders in West Sacramento are working to establish an inter-faith religious and community service organization. Members of the West Sacramento Ecumenical Ministery Association have been meeting once a month since August.

Of about 20 places of worship in West Sacramento, about seven are actively involved.

"I consider the purpose to be to have the religious community leaders get together, to share information and to support the well-being of West Sacramento," said Marge Beach, pastor of Community Lutheran Church.

A similar group, the West Sacramento Ministery Association which had been active in the community since 1979, disbanded a few years ago because the participants could not agree on who should be allowed to participate. "At the time it had been a Christian group, and there was a question of whether it would become inter-faith," said Beach.

Although the current group has decided to reach out to the non-Christian religious community, so far only Christian churches have become involved.

The most active members have been from Community Lutheran, Holy Cross Catholic Church, the Seventh Day Adventists, and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The group has reached out to the Baha'i community and to the Buddhist monastery, but so far it has received no response.

At least one Christian minister has decided against joining the group because of its decision to reach out to groups outside the christian faith. J. C. Meyers, of Joy Christian Ministries, considers non-Christian faiths such as Sikhism and Buddhism to be cults, and views them with suspicion. "When you start mixing the cults and the Christian faith, you're going to get some friction," he said. After attending two Ecumenical Association meetings, Meyers has decided to stop.

Though group has not yet defined the scope of its activities, one member would like to see them emphasize community service. Steve Palmer, who was active in the former group and the current one, is interested in concentrating on community service activities.

"Whatever this group evolves into, the common ground is human needs. It's so new right now and it takes time to build relationships. The common ground is food, housing, shelter. A lot of people believe in that," he said.

Some of the activities the former ministerial association sponsored and participated in which Palmer would like to see revived were "songfests" held in Bryte Park, and an annual "World Day of Prayer."

The group also sponsored weekly worship services at Sommerset Convalescent Hospital, which are still being held.

Valhalla mobile home park may get sound wall

The West Sacramento City Council will vote tonight on approving an agreement with Caltrans to build a sound wall to protect residents of the Valhalla Mobile Home Park from freeway noise from I-80.

If the agreement is approved, the state will contribute $667,000 towards the $740,000 construction project, and the city will bear the remainder of the costs.

Plans for the project began in 1990, when the city adopted a traffic mitigation fee to fund the construction.

The mobile home park is located south of the freeway and near the west end of West Sacramento.

Request from Lighthouse developer to drop marina to be heard tomorrow by planners

By David Weller

The City of West Sacramento may decide to remove the requirement for Riverbend Development Company to build a marina on its riverfront property near the Lighthouse Golf Course and Housing development.

The request will be heard by the planning commission at a public hearing tomorrow at 6 pm. The city council will consider the planning commission's recommendation at a public hearing Wednesday, March 3 at 7 pm.

The requirement to build the marina is part of a development agreement reached with the city in which West Sacramento contributed two parcels of land and invested $7 million in infrastructure inprovements to the Lighthouse property. The infrastructure money was raised from the sale of bonds in 1991.

Slightly belated Valentine's thoughts, on love:

By Daryl Fisher

Since yesterday was St. Valentine's Day, here are a few quotes by some brave people who claimed to have meaningful insights into the subject of love:

So long as we love, we serve. So long as we are loved by others, we are indispensable. (Robert Lewis Stevenson)

Do not save your most loving speeches for those who are dead.
Do not write them on tombstones,
Speak them rather now instead. (Anna Cummins)

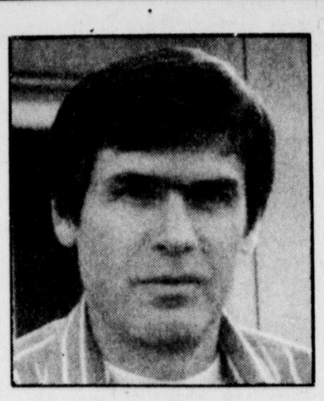

Love can withstand very severe storms of vigor, but not the long polar frost of indifference. (Sir Walter Scott)

Convey thy love as an arrow to the mark, to stick there; not as a ball against the wall to rebound back to thee. (Francis Quarles)

The supreme happiness of life is the conviction of being loved for yourself, or more correctly, being loved in spite of yourself. (Victor Hugo)

There is nothing more dangerous than a lover without discretion; even a prudent enemy is preferable. (Jean De La Fontaine)

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Asked by a gentleman friend why she seemed not to have a good sense of humor, Mrs. Pat Campbell replied, "God did it on purpose, so that I may love you men instead of laughing at you." (Woodrow Wyatt)

Love is not the dying moan of a distant violin -- it's the triumphant twang of a bedspring. (S.J. Perelman)

I love you because you have done more than any creed could have done to make me good, and more than any fate could have done to make me happy. (Anonymous)

Love is like a cigar. If it goes out, you can light it again, but it never tastes quite the same. (Field Marshall Wavell)

I think of the days before I met her, when I seemed to have no troubles at all! (Fujiwara Atsutada)

Husbands rarely understand their wives; wives usually understand their husbands all too well. (John Train)

"I was at a party feeling very shy because there were a lot of celebrities around, and I was sitting in a corner alone and a very beautiful young man came up to me and offered me some salted peanuts and said, "I wish they were emeralds" as he handed me the peanuts, and that was the end of my heart. I never got it back." (Helen Hayes)

We don't believe in rheumatism and true love until after the first attack. ("M.E. Eschenbach)

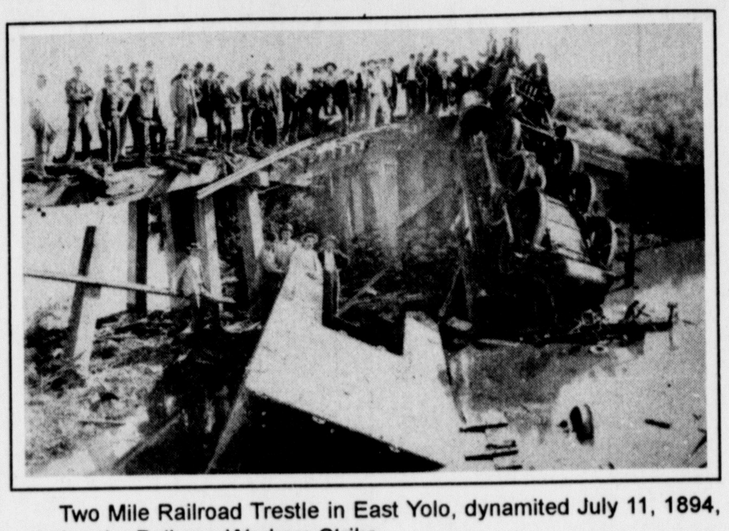

If I ever really love, it will be like Mary Queen of Scots, who said of her Bothwell that she could follow him around the world in her nightie. (J.M. Barrie)

Among those whom I like or admire, I can find no common denominator, but among those whom I love, I can: all of them make me laugh. ("W.H. Auden)

And finally, my personal favorite, although I can't remember the author: "I love you not only for who you are, but for what I am when I am with you."

The Sports Insider

The NFL's 75th anniversary football season is over and the San Francisco 49ers executed their plan to perfection, winning Super Bowl XXIX in Miami. The Niners became the first team in NFL history to win five Super Bowls, and they did it in their 49th year as a professional franchise, and isn't it strange they scored 49 points and that if you add up the total score (49 to 26), it equals 75? Steve Young threw six touchdowns to win the game MVP award and also threw the Joe Montana monkey off his back.

So what's next? Major league baseball!! Ya, right! I know I'm going to enjoy the baseball season because I'm going to coach a Pee Wee team in Little League.

Let's talk about the Sacramento Kings (25-20) and the NBA's All Star game MVP Mitch Richmond, who scored 23 points in the West's victory over the Eastern All-Stars last Sunday in Phoenix. The Kings are at the half-way point in the season, and it's their best start since the 1979-80 Kansas City Kings, who at mid-season were 26-19. If they continue their current place, they could make the playoffs.

The Kings have a tough second half schedule and need to stay away from the injury bug and hope their two rookies, Grand and Smith, continue playing at the same pace.

The Kings host Boston on Tuesday and then must beat their division rivals, the Los Angeles Lakers, on Thursday and the L.A. Clippers on Saturday at the Arco Arena.

Good boxing card on HBO this Saturday with undefeated WBO lightweight champion Oscar De La Hoya facing Puerto Rico's John John Molina. Molina is the fighter who came to Sacramento and took away Tony "The Tiger" Lopez's title. This has the makings of a great fight, because Molina's a very good fighter and hasn't lost a fight in over two years. James "Lights Out" Toney tangles with Montell Griffin for the IBF light heavyweight crown.

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Be careful with those development agreements. . .

Negotiating on behalf of the public:

West Sacramento officials are faced with a couple of potentially interesting negotiations right now. Both involve the "development agreement," in which the city and a developer each agree to do certain things to help a development project go through.

One involves the proposed MacMillan Bloedel/Haindl Papier recycling plant, proposed for the Southport Industrial Park between the deep water channel and Summerfield Dr.

City council members tried to tighten up language in the paper plant's development agreement, which was too vague, and did not adequately bind the paper plant to upgrade its facilities as technology allows.

Although councilman Wes Beers said he expected the changes to be immediately acceptable to the plant's backers, the matter won't come back before the council before next month.

The council is to be commended for instigating the changes, and the company's response will be a good indication of its genuine good faith.

The other development agreement facing scrutiny is one already adopted, in which the city and developers of the former "Lighthouse Marina" project (now just called "Lighthouse") ask to be relieved of their obligation to build a marina in the city's northeast area.

The market conditions which have led to a slow fizzle of this once-ambitious project are sad. And the developers do seem to be in financial difficulty.

But the city should keep in mind that taxpayers have already committed to chipping in to this project by funding many of its improvements. If Lighthouse is relieved of its obligation to build West Sacramento a marina, then the taxpayers, too, should get something out of the re-negotiated deal.

Perhaps a deed to the land for the marina? Who knows?

A less pressing concern:

It is hard sit in traffic at a stop light without observing someone in a car ahead casually toss a cigarette out the window. Or to approach a supermarket or stand in line for an automatic teller machine without seeing someone casually drop their "butt" onto the public or private property.

One wonders: do they know they're littering? That some of the rest of us don't want to look at their garbage?

Or do they not even realize that there's anything wrong with their habit of littering the sidewalks and streets with leftovers of their tobacco addiction?

Letters to the Editor

No more hookers!

With all due respect to the Mayor and City Council, I would like to know when the residents of West Sacramento will be able to drive down West Capitol Avenue without witnessing the spectacle of prostitution that confronts us on a daily basis. For the six years we have lived here, my husband and I have waited for this situation to change, yet not only does it persist but seems to have worsened.

I work in West Sacramento with many people from Sacramento, and must endure a variety of snide comments about our community from co-workers, who are understandably repulsed by the hookers loitering on the street, or parading by the restaurant where we have lunch. These people do not see the excellent programs sponsored by the City and little leagues; they know nothing of the families who have lived here for generations, and form the core of closeness unique to this city.

How can we instill pride for West Sacramento in our children rather than shame, as they witness the sordid activities on our main street? Our teenager refuses to go to dinner on West Capitol, and who can blame him when, at worst, he might well be solicited by a prostitute? Don't our kids have the right to feel comfortable hanging around downtown with their friends and families?

I realize that with the closing of the adult store and other improvements to this area, efforts have been made. But until this area is SERIOUSLY POLICED, and the longstanding arrangements between the motels, prostitutes, truckers, and police are eradicated, nothing will really change West Sacramento's image. No amount of development in Southport can compensate for having a downtown that is a virtual red light district.

I submit these allegations, and challenge the leaders of West Sacramento to stop looking the other way, and turn things around for its patient and trusting citizens.

MELISSA CUSHING
West Sacramento

Cahill responds:

In your Feb. 8 edition, you printed a letter from Dan Amegin, of the Southport Homeowners Association, known as "SHA." SHA purports to represent the residents of Southport, not just its small membership. As a homeowner in Southport, I can certainly attest that they do NOT represent me, and given the misstatements Mr. Amegin made in his letter, I feel it necessary to get the truth in print, even considering the source of those misstatements.

I was there when the SHA was formed. However, I soon learned that a small core group of people (those who were most agitated about the idea of affordable housing being built anywhere but in the northern end of town) had turned issues of neighborhood concern into a crusade to keep the "wrong" kind of people out of our neighborhood. That attitude was not in line with my thinking, so I quietly dropped out of the Association. I remain quite comfortable with that decision.

Instead, I became a founding member of the City's Ad Hoc Housing Committee, which began the task of satisfying the community's legal obligation to provide affordable housing. (I should note that Dan Amegin was invited to join, but only attended two meetings.) When the Ad Hoc Committee became the permanent Housing Commission, I moved on to the Planning Commission, where I continue to spend a great deal of my time and attention in trying to make a good community even better.

It is my personal opinion that people have an obligation to be good citizens, and the way to be a good citizen is to become involved in providing solutions to the problems that face us. That's why, when the issue of building a Cheaper store first arose, I went to the Southport Homeowners' Association meeting to discuss their concerns. Rather than have a dialogue that was constructive, I was harassed for my efforts and told that my mind was already made up. (Now, I know my mind better than anyone, and my mind was definitely NOT made up.) It soon became evident that most of this small group of people clearly had no intention of listening to anyone's opinions but their own. I then decided that it would be more productive to seek out more reasonable members of the SHA through which to work to effect a solution. In that regard, I contacted an officer of the SHA, Martha Lewis, and worked with her to draft a letter to the Planning Commission that enumerated the Association's concerns as well as their proposed solutions. The Planning Commission's decision on the Cheaper store included point for point most of the solutions that SHA requested. Subsequently, SHA, or rather Mr. Amegin's, opposition simply shifted to a new line of attack, once reasonable solutions were arrived at to meet his stated concerns.

If you examine Mr. Amegin's public statements, you will see that every time an objection he raises is overcome, he stubbornly moves to a new, and even less factually grounded, objection. Now he claims to be concerned about traffic. If this were true, why has he spitefully vowed never to use the store when it is built, and to make more, not fewer, trips across the bridge? The simple fact is, Dan doesn't like the name. He has said so countless times in public. If the store were called something really upscale, with the snob appeal that fits his image of having "arrived" by moving to the southern part of town, then it would be acceptable. To let a store called "Cheaper" near his home seems to conjure up the demons of the bitter impoverished youth he painted such a compelling picture of in his letter to this newspaper, a background that he so earnestly yearns to distance himself from.

Unlike Mr. Amegin, I want to live in a community that pulls together, drawing from each other's strengths and lending a hand when we encounter weakness. It bothers me when I hear people proclaiming themselves to be the "haves" and seeking to close the door on the "have nots." If you take a look at some of the things that Mr. Amegin has said in public about the citizens of West Sacramento who live north of the barge canal, you get the sense that he feels he is superior to them and therefore, entitled to a greater voice in the way things are run. In his Dec. 1 letter to the City Council, he goes so far as to say that "as homeowners in the developing portion of our City, we have a vested interest in our City's future, perhaps more so than any other individual or group." I believe that all of us have an equal stake in the future of this community, and that none of us are more equal than others. The people that Dan Amegin seems so proud to have moved away from, that he yearns to keep at arms' length, have the same rights and privileges, the same stake in their community, as anyone else does. They also have legitimate concerns that seem more pressing to this community than Dan's political ambitions.

In his letter to the editor, Dan Amegin wondered if I knew all about his background and the family that he left behind. I wonder if he knows about the people in the Broderick and Bryte neighborhoods who have real, not imagined, concerns for their personal security. I wonder if he knows about the citizens of our city who aren't as fortunate as he is, but yet are still honest, hardworking, taxpayers who

A public service of this publication and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Our printing costs just went up 15 percent.

Our mailing costs just went up 15 percent.

Our subscription rates just stayed the same.

Prices for newsprint are rising, and producing this newspaper was about 15 percent more expensive than it would have been a couple of months ago. And at the same time the U.S. Postal Service raised the price of a first class stamp from 29 cents to 32 cents, it raised the rates we use to bring our subscribers their weekly copies of the News-Ledger.

It occurred to us that it might be necessary to raise subscription rates to cover these rising costs.

But we're going to try not to. There is another way. With your help, we can keep our annual subscription rate right where it is -- at the unusually low rate of $15 per year within Yolo County and $20 elsewhere.

How?

By helping to get more subscribers to the News-Ledger, you can help reduce costs for everybody. It's called the "economy of scale." It's cheaper, per person, to print and mail 5,000 copies of the News-Ledger than it is to print and mail 2,500.

In 1994, the circulation of the News-Ledger grew by over 20 percent, to nearly 3,000 actual paid copies per week. If we grow by a similar amount in 1995, we can hold your costs right where they are.

We hope you agree that West Sacramento is a better place because it has a locally owned, independent newspaper to help keep the community informed. We hope you'll help support that newspaper by encouraging a friend or neighbor to subscribe.

And, by the way, another way to support the News-Ledger is to patronize our advertisers whenever possible and to mention their ad in the News-Ledger when you visit them.

Thank you.

18 attend leadership conference

By Rhapsody Flores
Commissioner of Publicity
River City High School

Eighteen River City High School leadership students spent the weekend of February 3, 4, and 5 in Los Angeles. The trip was to attend the 1995 Winter Election Leadership Convention (WELC). This convention was put on by the California Association of Student Councils (CASC). The lucky students were Brian Kinney, Rhapsody Flores, Jesus Martinez, Heather Mayhew, Joe Chairez, Steffany Silva, Danielle Gaines, Sehn Saelee, Nav Singh, Johnny Phouthachack, Alyssa Murphy, Courtney Myers, Jennifer Newkirk, Jennifer Ortega, Jennifer McFadden, Tony Vendetti, Ramen Bola, and Poonam Prasad. The conference was held to elect a new CASC state president and vice president.

The conference was held at the Los Angeles Sheraton. There were about sixty three schools that attended the conference. Delegates had the opportunity to attend workshops. The workshops were on making better school rallies, cleaning up the high school's campus, and even sexual harassment.

Delegates heard three great keynote speakers: Keith Harrel, Phil Boyte, and Micah Jacobson.

Every school met in regions. The regions were a break up of California's counties. River City is in region 2.

All students met in small groups. The small groups met at least twice a day. These groups were made up of one experienced counselor and ten students from entirely different schools. The small groups were a great experience. There were delegates from Marysville High, Nevada Union, Sonora, and even Beverly Hills High School. Small groups taught what a real leader is, how to work as a team, and not to pre-judge people.

There was a dance held Saturday night. All of the conference participants agreed that the dance was one of the most exciting activities.

In the end, River City's students hope to have learned and brought back new skills. They hope to use their skills within the school and community.

Minimizing the tax bite during retirement

MARTHA J. LEWIS
Personal Financial Planner
IDS Financial Services, Inc.

Social Security benefits generally provide only about 35 percent or less of the average individual's retirement income.

While this might not add up to a huge amount of money, it may be enough to affect your tax bite. Under current laws, retired people who are individuals with incomes of more than $25,000 or couples with incomes of more than $32,000-including 50 percent of their Social Security benefits-pay income tax on as much as half of their benefits.

At this time, 22 percent of Social Security recipients have their benefits taxed. And, with the way things have been going, this percentage is more likely to go up than down. So, is there anything you can do if you're among the retirees who must pay taxes on your Social Security benefits?

Your options, unfortunately, are somewhat limited. You can try any of several steps that might provide some relief, however. Switch from taxable investments to tax-exempt invest, lent. Income from investments such as tax-exempt municipal bonds is included when determir ing whether or not your income exceeds the thresholds. Switching from taxable to tax-exempt investments, therefore, won't affect the taxation of your Social Security benefits.

However, taking this step might help your total tax bill. Switch to tax-deferred investments. This may be a viable option for you because these earnings aren't included in the calculation for tax on Social Security benefits.

Switch to long-term capital gains assets. The gains from these assets, which include stocks or real estate, aren't realized until they're sold. You can take this step if you're not comfortable with annuities or income-producing assets.

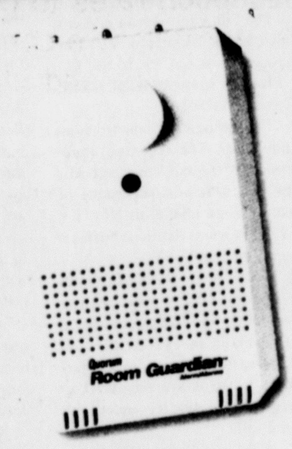

You may want to seek advice from a tax-planning professional or a financial plnner to help you find your way through the maze of current and proposed taxes. These professionals also can help you determine which options will work best in your situation.

Keeping Records Can Reduce Tax

Following are examples of common questions people ask the Internal Revenue Service. They are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. Does the IRS recommend a method for record keeping?

A. You must keep accurate records, but the IRS does not require a particular method for organizing them.

Q. What kind of records should I keep?

A. Keep sales slips, invoices, receipts, cancelled checks and financial account statements in order to verify the deductions and credits shown on your tax return. Also keep Forms W-2, Wage and Tax Statement; Forms 1099 showing interest, dividends, distributions; stock brokerage statements; and any other documents that prove the amounts shown on your return as income.

Q. How will keeping records reduce my tax?

A. If you keep records of your expenses during the year, you may be able to reduce your income tax by itemizing your deductions on Schedule A (Form 1040). Your deductible expenses may include a part of your medical and dental bills, mortgage interest payments, contributions, taxes and some other expenses.

Q. What is the procedure for getting copies of my tax returns?

A. You can request a copy of your return and all the attachments (including Form W-2) by sending Form 4506 to the IRS. Send the completed form to the Internal Revenue Service Center where you filed the return. There is a charge for a copy of a return, which must be paid with Form 4506, but there is no charge for only a copy of Form W-2. Returns filed more than six years ago may not be available for making copies.

Q. What records do I need to keep as a homeowner?

A. You should keep records that show the basis of property you own. The basis of property you buy is usually its cost. You must keep records of the purchase price of your home, any purchase expenses, the cost of any improvements, and any other basis adjustments, such as depreciation and deductible casualty losses. If you sold your old home and postponed tax on the gain from the sale, you should keep information from the old home, too.

Q. What will the IRS accept as proof that I made a cash donation to a charity?

A. If you contribute cash, you must keep one of the following for each contribution: a cancelled check or a financial account statement or a receipt from the charity showing its name, the amount and the date of the contribution.

For more information about recordkeeping, call 1-800-829-3676 to order the free Publication 552, Recordkeeping for Individuals.

deserve the same dignity and respect as anyone else. Most of all, I wonder why he chooses time and time again to resort to personal attack, bullying tactics, and the denigration of his neighbors (most often in the northern end of town, but more recently some of us in the southern portion) rather than simply arguing an issue on its own merits. Unlike Dan, I won't try to know exactly what he is thinking, but I will say that in my opinion, it appears he makes personal attacks because he knows that his "objections" are fictitious and because his motives are to make political hay by standing on the backs of his neighbors.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

A fine declarer plays many hands as though he has seen through the backs of the cards. For a good example of how a keen declarer can function, examine this deal from the 1978 Olympiad Pair Championship.

South was Peter Nagy, well-known Canadian star. West led the king of clubs and continued with the ace after East played the nine. West then led the jack, ruffed in dummy with the king of hearts. East in the meantime had discarded a spade and a diamond.

Nagy now led the nine of hearts from dummy, a very farsighted play, and went up with the ace after East followed low. When West showed out, Nagy led a spade to the ace and returned the seven of trumps, covered by the eight and jack.

Next came a diamond to the king, followed by the four of trumps, covered by East's five and declarer's six. After cashing his last trump, the queen, Nagy led the queen of clubs, which East refused to ruff because he would have to return a diamond into dummy's A-J.

This merely postponed East's agony. Declarer next led a spade to dummy's king, presenting East with the choice of whether to ruff and return a diamond or whether to discard and allow declarer to score the king of spades as his ninth trick. In the latter case, dummy would then cash the king of diamonds for his tenth trick.

And so, thanks to his careful play, and also because the six of hearts proved to be an exceptionally powerful card, Nagy managed to make four hearts. Although he seemed to have four certain losers — two clubs, a trump and a spade — one of these losers disappeared on the way to the forum.
